GIRL CROSSING TRACK DIES INSTANTLY

Electrocuted When Short Circuit Is Formed by Her Bathing Skirt.

New York, August 20.—Miss Margaret Wesley, 21 years old, was killed in a most extraordinary way at Edgemere, L. I., yesterday afternoon. Water dripping from her bathing suit as she crossed the tracks of the Long Island railroad caused a short circuit with the third rail.

Miss Wesley, while in the surf was taken with a chill. In order to reach her home at 16 Far Rockaway Boulevard, she ran up Neptune avenue, and had but to cross the tracks to come to the rear of her house.

There are three tracks here with the third rail of each unprotected. Barbed wire fencing flanks the tracks, cutting off Neptune avenue.

It was necessary for the young woman to climb through the fence.

Having crossed the east bound track she was about to step between the third rail of this and the third rail of the middle track when the current leaped to her skirt from the live rail of the first track, and dragged her sprawling across the rail of the middle track.

Her body was found by William Schaefer, motorman on an Ocean Electric railway trolley, which is a subsidiary of the Long Island railroad, and operates on the middle track. Schaefer removed the body with a pole, severing the electric connection. The body showed but slight burns on the two elbows and the left hand.

Dr. Suckin from St. Joseph's Hospital, Far Rockaway, said death had been instantaneous. The body was taken to the morgue.

Frank B. Sanborn Issues a Statement of Law and Facts Regarding Green Acre Controversy

Frank B. Sanborn of Concord has this week sent the following communication:

Gentlemen: Permit me to present to you the position and circumstances of one who was formerly one of your most justly esteemed residents, a land owner in Eliot, in the county of York, and the beneficent, by reason of a life estate, of a famous property in that country, Green Acre, by name, given her in his will by a liberal citizen of Washington, D. C., the late James C. Hoe; but who is, now a voluntary exile in New Hampshire, deprived of the use and benefit of her

WILL USE DYNAMITE

In Attempt to Raise Body of Oscar Randall.

A half dozen men are still searching for the body of Oscar Randall, who was drowned in the pool between the first and second New Castle bridges. Today they dragged the cove with nets but the search revealed nothing. This afternoon they will attempt to raise the body by the use of dynamite in four places with hopes that the explosion will cause the body to come to the surface.

One of the most attractive places in the store is where all the pretty, dainty things for babies are shown. The little mites of humanity are usually incentives to great extravagance. Personal pride, vanity and love combine to make ordinarily frugal mothers almost indifferent to cost when buying for the new baby. However, we do not take advantage of that phase of temperamental weakness by exacting large profits for infants' goods.

POSTAL BAN PUT ON FRANKING OF TARIFF PHAMPLET

Postmaster Told to Reject Literature Bearing Stamp of Senator Gallinger.

Washington, Aug. 19.—E. M. Morgan, postmaster at New York, has been directed by W. J. Barrows, acting third assistant postmaster-general, not to accept for mailing, under a Congressional frank, any further copies of a pamphlet which Wilbur F. Wakeman, secretary-treasurer of the American Protective Tariff League, has been sending free through the mails for several years. The pamphlet has been circulated under the frank of Senator Jacob H. Gallinger of New Hampshire. It bears the title:

"American Tariffs, from Plymouth to McKinley and Dingley. Prosperity is the Issue. Protection is Panic Proof."

This pamphlet was printed in 1904 and has been in circulation since. While the matter in the pamphlet, which covers 128 printed pages, appears to have been taken from the Congressional Record, and therefore to be frankable, at the end there are more than three pages of index, which officials have been unable to find in the Record. This being the case, they have directed the New York postmaster to accept no further copies of the pamphlet for mailing under frank.

In the same letter, Postmaster Morgan is directed to call on Wakeman for a statement showing the number of copies of this pamphlet mailed by him. In order that, unless he can show that the index appears in the Congressional Record, it may be determined what amount of postage can be collected from him or the league on copies already mailed.

The contents of the pamphlet purport to be speeches and extracts of speeches delivered by Senator Gallinger on the tariff, dating back to 1884. The attention of the Postoffice Department officials was called to abuses of the franking privilege by the American Protective Tariff League. Information was received to the effect that "tons of high tariff literature were being sent out under Congressional franks." The informant declared further that "a number of Congressmen have given power of attorney permitting the use of their franks for protective tariff literature, which is sent through the mails from the New York postoffice. It clogs the mails and helps to swell the cost of the postal department."

As soon as this information was placed in the hands of Postmaster-General Burleson and Third Assistant Postmaster-General Dooley, an investigation was ordered. While on the days on which the numerous mail channels were watched in New York, no unusually heavy mailings of franked matter were observed, the pamphlet which is now held up was unopened. That this pamphlet is not frankable, and never has been, in the conviction of the Postmaster-General, and other officials of the department. If Mr. Wakeman can point to the page in the Congressional Record where the index appears, he will be able to continue sending it through the mails. Otherwise, he or the American Protective Tariff League must pay postage on any copies that may be sent through the mails hereafter.

In this letter Wakeman, while denying that the American Protective Tariff League holds powers of attorney from any Senator or Representative, says:

"Personally, I am the agent or private secretary of five Senators and Congressmen to forward their speeches reprinted from the Congressional Record to lists furnished by them or to miscellaneous lists directed by them. I have been forwarding literature under the conditions stated for about twenty years, and at times the mailings are very heavy. These speeches or extracts are not received as a rule for mailing from Congressmen, but they are reprinted in New York exactly as produced in the Congressional Record."

WILL BATTLE TO LIBERATE THAW

Canada to Deport Him Back to New Hampshire.—Case Matter of Domestic Concern to United States

Ottawa, Ont., August 19.—Harry K. Thaw will be deported from Canada under the present plans of the Canadian Immigration Department, because within the meaning of the Canadian immigration act he is regarded as a "prohibited person."

If custom is followed he will be sent back to New Hampshire, from which he entered the Dominion.

It was late this afternoon when the department was officially notified of Thaw's apprehension and immediately inspectors D. H. Reynolds, and F. E. Williams were dispatched to Sherbrooke with instructions to watch the case and institute proceedings to the above mentioned end.

The department wired this afternoon to the Chief of Police at Sherbrooke to hold Thaw under the immigration act.

The act seems plain in regard to Thaw's case. There are certain classes, who under section 40 are not eligible to enter Canada, or who if they succeed in doing so, are not permitted to remain here. The law states that idiots, imbeciles, insane people or criminals, shall not enter the country and if they do succeed in entering the officers of the immigration department they shall be deported forthwith.

There is an exception however, and it is interesting to note that the neurologist, Jack Johnson, recently managed to pass through Canada under the clause which provides that one of the prohibited class who enters Canada carries with him through transportation to another country may not have his passage impeded.

Information received here does not say whether Thaw has taken the precaution of securing such transportation.

tion through following so closely on the Johnson affair, it is difficult to see how his legal adviser could have overlooked this contingency.

At the justice department grave doubt is expressed as to the power of the courts to grant extradition under which authority Thaw has evidently been held, in the treaty between Great Britain and the United States, escape from an asylum is not mentioned as an extraditable offense.

The department however, inhesitatingly expressed the opinion that the case comes under the immigration act.

Will Be Sent to New Hampshire

Questions of the legality of Thaw's arrest do not conflict with any action under the immigration act. Deportation proceedings are very simple.

They merely consist of arresting the object of deportation and if there is sufficient evidence to fix identity and as to his disability to enter the country under the limitations of the law, he is simply escorted across the border to a point 75 miles in the interior.

The custom is to remove him through the port and into the state by which he entered after the officers of the United States government have been notified under a reciprocity agreement between the United States and Canada in advance. It is likely that Thaw will be sent back to New Hampshire.

Objections to deportation proceedings have rarely succeeded as, prohibited immigrants have not under the act, the opportunity of resisting the inspectors of the immigration department.

Once Thaw is landed back over the border it will be matter of domestic concern to the United States authorities as to how he will further be dealt with.

HOUSE ON LAFAYETTE ROAD BURGLARIZED

House of Harold W. Call Entered and Quantity of Silver Ware Taken.

The residence of Harold W. Call on Lafayette road, was visited by burglars on Thursday night and a ran-geed, from, to, cellar.

Entrance was gained by forcing out the panel of a door in the rear of the house through which the thieves crawled with ease. They carried off silver knives, forks, spoons and considerate clothing of Mr. Call's.

Mr. and Mrs. Call, have not occupied the house for the past two weeks, having been staying in the city. The break was discovered this morning by Mr. Call, who went to the house to hold ground. Three young men were seen in the neighborhood early on Tuesday evening and the people living nearby are satisfied that they did the job. Deputy Ducker and Officer Shannon were assigned to the case, but up to noon could get nothing that would lead to any arrests in connection with the robbery.

WITH A HISTORY.

Cannon on Garrison Hill at Dover Was Taken There to Celebrate Buchanan's Election.

Miss Elizabeth P. Tapley in the July number of Granite Monthly, gives an interesting account of the old cannon on Garrison Hill. It was brought there from the Portsmouth navy yard in 1866, to celebrate the election of James Buchanan as President. Joseph Young brought it up the river on a gunboat, and Jefferson Conney hauled it from the landing in a spot on the west side of Garrison Hill. Careful preparations were made and directions given for firing it one hundred times in honor of Buchanan.

Objections to deportation proceedings have rarely succeeded as, prohibited immigrants have not under the act, the opportunity of resisting the inspectors of the immigration department.

Once Thaw is landed back over the border it will be matter of domestic concern to the United States authorities as to how he will further be dealt with.

DROWNED AT WALLIS SANDS WHILE BATHING

Whitney Kipp, Surf Riding in Canoe With R. W. Snow, Becomes Exhausted in Battle With Surf and Sinks--Companion is Rescued By Walter Pickett--Kipp's Body Recovered.

Whitney Kipp of New York and Washington, was drowned shortly after noon Tuesday at Wallis Sands where he was in bathing with a friend R. W. Snow of Washington, who reached shore in an exhausted condition. Kipp's body was recovered nearly two hours afterwards.

Merita Kipp and Snow, both experienced swimmers were in their bathing suits riding the surf in a canoe, and it was exciting sport for them with a heavy surf running and with an incoming tide. Twice they had been out and the canoe had been capsized by the rollers, but they easily swam ashore. The third time they tried it they got out farther from shore than on the first two trips, and when the canoe went over they started for shore.

Snow was leading, and as he got in near shore he began to feel tired and he called back to Kipp to see if he was alright. He responded saying he could make shore alright, and for the next few minutes Snow had his hands full battling with the surf, and he swam shore in an exhausted condition, being helped ashore by Walter Pickett, a fish boy of the Ocean Wave hotel who was in bathing on the beach east who ran to his assistance. Snow while exhausted soon recovered his strength and was able to walk to Merita's cottage where he is staying.

Young Pickett, who is but 17 years of age, as soon as he got Snow ashore started out for Kipp who was battling with the surf. He is a powerful swimmer and he was within ten feet of Kipp when he threw up his arms and with a last determined cry for help he sank from view.

Young Pickett swam around and down for the body but could not find it and he finally swam ashore.

The life saving crew at Wallis Sands was called and they made fast their in their surf boat to the scene, and for nearly two hours kept up a search for the body. They had just finally given up the quest, and had started for shore, when the body was seen in the surf near the rocks, and quickly brought to the surface, and brought ashore.

Although he had been in the water two hours the life savers worked over him for some time until the arrival of Dr. E. B. Endman, who then directed the work for over an hour, but he was exhausted. Medical referee A. B. Sherburne was called and pronounced death due to accident.

Mr. Kipp married Miss Annette Smith, the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Smith, and with his wife and nine months old baby, they were on a visit to her parents at Tower cottage, Rose Beach. Mr. Kipp has been having a fine time in the surf and has used the canoe whenever there was any surf running. His wife was prostrated by the accident and is under the care of a physician.

Mr. Kipp was a graduate of Cornell and was employed as an mechanical engineer with the Dwyer Boiler Works of New York.

Walter Pickett who witnessed the accident tells The Herald the following story: I was in my bathing suit on the beach and saw both Mr. Kipp and Mr. Snow in the canoe, riding the surf and twice they overturned the canoe and swam ashore. The third time when they had come in part way from the canoe, I noticed that they were having a hard time with the undercurrent and then I heard Mr. Kipp who was being Snow call for help. I ran into the water and met Snow who was exhausted and pulled him ashore, and then started for Mr. Kipp. The surf was high and the undertow terrific and I had a hard swim when within ten feet of Mr. Kipp I saw him sink from view, and I dived into the surf after him but the undertow had got him and pulled him out of sight. After swimming around for a time I came ashore. I was sorry that I did not reach him in time.

The unfortunate young man was a great favorite at the beach and the accident has cast a gloom over the entire beach.

WINS GAME FOR YORK.

Richards of Manchester High Fans Eleven Men.

Richards of Manchester High school went in the box in the first inning of Tuesday's game with the busses full after Gill had walked two and made a wide home to second, and retired the side allowing the Nationals of Woonsocket, R. I., only one run.

Gill opened up wild by passing the first man, the second man hit a weak grounder to Gill, who tried for a double play but the ball went to center.

After getting two strikes on Larkein he shot over four wide ones, filling the bases. Richards then took up the task and hit the first man on the head, forcing in a run. Baxters to McKenna made the first putout and Richards struck out the next two.

This was all the scoring the visitors could do until the ninth when Young threw low on Larkein's grounder. The next two men were easily out and the crowd was leaving the grounds when Beauchemin doubled to left, scoring Larkein. Rogers flied out to Hayes for the final out. The score:

ENLISTED MEN TO BE GIVEN CHANCE TO SEE EUROPE

Washington, Aug. 19.—The enlisted men had better begin saving their money. They will have a chance to see something of Europe." Secretary of the Navy Daniels gave expression to this sentiment when asked for details of the cruise of the battleship fleet and the destroyer flotilla to the Mediterranean. The whole program centres around his desire to make the service agreeable and profitable for the enlisted men.

"There were some arguments in favour of abandoning the cruise in favor of other work," he continued, "but I had stated that the fleet would cross the Atlantic and the officers and men are looking forward to it. I told them that either we would make good our recruiting 'advertisements' promises that men can learn something and see the world, or I would fear them up. The decision to have all available torpedo destroyers accompany the fleet sprang from the fact that the men of this fleet were much agitated lest they be left behind. They are as much entitled to a glimpse of Europe as the crews of the battleships."

The fleet which will go abroad will probably consist of about ten battleships and all the destroyers at present attached to the Atlantic fleet. The battleships of the first division—the Wyoming, the Arkansas, the Delaware, the Florida, the North Dakota and the Utah—will make the trip. The battleships Vermont, Connecticut, Kansas, and Ohio are also available for the cruise. The battleships now in Mexican waters—the Louisiana, the Michigan, the New Hampshire and the South Carolina—will remain there until about Nov. 1 and will not return in time to go abroad. The division consisting of the Rhode Island, the Virginia, the Nebraska and the New Jersey, which will relieve the battleships now in Mexican waters, will also be unable to make the cruise. Rear Admiral Charles J. Badger, commanding-chief of the fleet, is drawing up a tentative itinerary, which he will submit to the department in a few days for approval. The Secretary is enthusiastic over the school he established under Commander Roger Welles at the Newport training station. During their three months' instruction prior to going to sea the recruits are given instruction in arithmetic, grammar and spelling. While the average of intelligence among recruits is high, the Secretary finds a surprising percentage who are comparatively untrained. The idea of selecting the Oregon as the first battleship to pass through the Panama Canal is firmly fixed in the Secretary's mind. He said:

"The Oregon will be placed in commission and ordered to report to the Atlantic fleet at Guantanamo. She will be the first large warship to pass through the Canal, and her crew, recalling the famous run she made around South America to join Sampson's fleet off Santiago, will fittingly emphasize the great saving in time and distance the Canal will permit. Afterwards some time next spring the Oregon will lead the Atlantic fleet through the Canal to the Pacific."

PUNISHMENT BY INSTALMENT

One of our city magistrates has ad-ticed a chauffeur to pay a fine of $25.00 on an instalment plan, $6.00 down and $5.00 a week until fully paid. This makes it easy for an impudent offender and has many things to recommend it. If the instalment plan, as applied to payment of fines becomes established in our legal procedure further steps might be taken. Offenders sentenced to a term in July might serve their terms on an instalment plan, which would enable them to earn money outside of jail for the support of their families and still pay the full penalty of the law within prison walls. How would it do to let prisoners work week days and spend their Sundays and holidays in jail? This would probably be about as disagreeable as staying in jail all the time and it might be considered to be a cruel and unusual punishment. A lot of offenders serve short jail sentences which seem to do them no good and to be an expense to the community. Any magistrate that can work out a plan to make punishment fit the crime better than it does now will be deserving the credit of honor.—From the New York Commercial.

ARTHUR W. HORTON THE SINCLAIR GARAGE Middle St. Phone 282-3 PORTSMOUTH

By the purchase of Maiden Castle, near Dartmouth, through the duchy of Cornwall, the king of England has saved from neglect and possible destruction one of the most perfect prehistoric encampments in Great Britain, the rival of Stonehenge in age and interest. The fortifications were erected by a race who existed long before the days of historical records and who gave it the name of Mat Dinn, or Hill of Strength. Maiden Castle is an entrenched hill rather than a castle, for on the north side these prehistoric builders raised three great ramparts sixty feet high, with deep ditches intervening, and similar ramparts were cunningly arranged to cover each other on the other sides of the hill. The only entrances are by winding paths, which form mazes among the ramparts and which lead to the top of the hill, where a great dew pond was built, in which, by an ingenious feat of engineering known to the prehistoric people, it was possible to collect quantities of water for the animals and inhabitants of the hill. On the plain at the top, which covers 120 acres, the neolithic man could leave his castle absolutely secure from attack by wolves or by human enemies. The Romans occupied the fortress in later years and strengthened it with stone-work, but the triumph of having created this gigantic intrenchment belongs to the engineers of the forgotten Celtic tribes.

Why People Don't Go to Church.

People who believe that automobiles, Sunday papers, concerts or other features of city life are the principal causes of the lack of interest in the churches, are confounded by the testimony of summer visitors to secluded villages who find that the country churches with none of these counter attractions are quite as neglected as those of the city. This scattering testimony of the casual vacationists is supported by statistics, and while there are exceptions in both city and country it may be accepted as a fact that judging by the church attendance the religious interest of only a generation ago is sadly diminished at least among the Protestant denominations of this country. Natick churches do as well and perhaps better than other communities of its kind, but taking into account the growth of the population they are not securing their proportion of increased attendance.

"Why don't people go to church?" is a question that is agitating clergy, lay, philosophers, and all students of social conditions, but the answers so far given are pitifully inadequate. The real reason lies far deeper than the mere summary of the multitude of other interests that occupy the mind of man. It may be the fault of the people or the fault of the churches. More or less success has attended sporadic efforts to attract the people by superb music, discussions of popular subjects, addresses by eminent orators, but even when audiences are thus gathered the devotional spirit of our ancestors is missing.

It is not a materialistic age. On every side are the wonders of man's achievement, and millions are studying, thinking, toiling to quicken the pace of civilization already fast. Fairly adequate provision is made by the state, individuals and countless philanthropic and charitable organizations to assist those who cannot keep up. The milk of human kindness has not dried up, but the man with his intellect, his labor, and his charities would do it all. In the very exercise of the Christian virtues man fails to think of God as the author of all strength and the giver of every good and perfect gift.

Perhaps if the churches would once more set up their altars in the realm of faith; if ministers would step into their pulpits burning with the importance of their message and inspired by absolute belief in the Word of God; if there were more testing of the efficacy of prayer, of God's power to forgive sins, to solace grief, perhaps people would flock to divine worship because of the peace and the power it would bring them.

To Keep Promises.

It probably surprises a good many of the officials of the Naval Department to find that Secretary Daniels actually believes in keeping the promises made to intending recruits to the service on the advertisements calling for enlistments. But why should it?

We all know how beautiful the man-of-war service can be made—on lithographs. We have all seen the pictures of our gallant "jacks" strolling about in lovely foreign lands, care-free and beaming with happiness. We have all read the enthusiastic literature that told of the broadening influences of travel abroad. And most people know that mighty little of it ever materializes.

But secretary Daniels declines to perpetuate the fraud. He insists that the projected foreign cruise shall not be abandoned. "I had stated that the fleet would cross the Atlantic," he says, "and the officers and men are looking forward to it. I told them that either we would make good our recruiting advertisement promises that men can learn something and see the world or I would tear them up."

This may be new and radical doctrine, but it is one that Uncle Sam need not be ashamed of.—Boston Post.

The Case of Harry Thaw.

Glad he escaped! Hope they will not find him! Such have been the exclamations on every hand since the announcement of Harry K. Thaw's escape from Matteawan. Ever since Thaw's trial there has been a general feeling that his crime was justified (if such a thing is possible) and that since his trial the New York grafters have worked the Thaw family for a million dollars or more. Regarding his sanity no one questions but what he is sane enough, excepting those who were in the deal to save him from the chair. Much sympathy is expressed upon every hand for his devoted mother, and it is hoped that he will be free long enough to permit him to write a book on the "rotten system that exists in New York." A vote of New Hampshire would be practically unanimous to set him free.

Martin H. Glynn, Acting Governor Of New York Due to Impeachment

Acting Governor Martin H. Glynn of New York became acting governor of that state after the impeachment of Governor William Sulzer for alleged private use of campaign clerks. Mr. Glynn, who is regarded as friendly to Tammany, which brought about the Sulzer impeachment, did not take up his duties as acting governor, however, without a fight on the part of the accused executive. Governor Sulzer held that he was governing until the court of impeachment had found him guilty. Mr. Glynn, however, acted under the provision of the state constitution which provides that in case of the impeachment of the governor the lieutenant governor becomes acting governor until the result of the trial is known. If the governor is found guilty the lieutenant governor then becomes acting executive. The acting governor is shown seated at his desk.

safety at Wallis Sands on Tuesday and then swimming out in an attempt to save young Kipp, shows the metal that our young Americans are made of. Pickett is the right kind of a lad and he showed courage and skill in rushing into the breakers and proved a real hero. He thought nothing of himself in his efforts to save the others and only came back to shore by the demand of others who feared for his own safety.

LAND OF VAMPIRE RATS AND BITING ANTS.

A remarkably interesting description of a 2000-mile journey up the River Parana and its tributary, the Acre, was given before the Royal Geographical Society on May 6 by Lieutenant Herbert A. Edwards, whose party conducted frontier exploration on the Bolivia-Brazil boundary in 1911-12.

Describing their difficult progress through the virgin forests, the steep and a track, twenty-feet broad, was cut straight through the forest, and a rigorous threecold traverse undertaken to carry their longitude from point to point. At that direction was obtained by compass bearing, after initial exploration, but this method was found to be exceedingly slow and laborious, and they adopted the quicker plan of slogging out a slightly-easier path partly to locate the river, some distance ahead.

Signals would then be exchanged by an arranged code of rifle shots, and the leading party, which had remained in camp, would blaze a track towards the advance section, after which the blazed track was widened and cleared, and bridges built across streams and marshes, where necessary. In this way they progressed through the heart of the forest about fifteen miles in thirty-five days. The soil of the country, he said, was wonderfully fertile, and with very little till returned a harvest out of all proportion.

In the forest and on the smaller rivers life was made almost unbearable by insect pests. Ants were met with everywhere; they swarmed over one's person in hundreds and most of them bit most savagely. There are kinds of red ants, called trinch, which live in trees named trinchulos, hollowed out by themselves, whose life was black touch with a red hot iron. If a person inadvertently touched or leaned an against one of these paleolos, the ants swarmed out upon him instantly, and his life for hours afterwards was a long drawn-out misery. There were other ants, 1 1/2 inches in length, who lived in the forks of trees. One soldier was incapacitated for several days by a bite from one of these.

Vampire bats came out into the open spaces at dusk, and unless were particularly liable to attack from these blood-suckers, which fastened

MEMORY.

The years are sped! For me the sun is low,
The shadows lengthen and the dusk is near,
Yet kind is nature for I do not fear,
And nothing now can stir my pulses slow.

Only within the garden now and then
When comes the scent of box or marigold,
Or when I hear some tune I knew of old,
Or children clamber to my breast again,
For one brief instant something wonderful
Lights in my soul and folds its fragile wings
As though to stay, and all my being sings,
Filled with content, forgetful of the night,
Only an instant and again 'tis gone,
The singing passes and silence falls,
Yet deep within, an echo beats and calls
And faint vibrations murmur on and on.

Just as some bright bird lighting in a tree,
Pours forth its soul among the branches old,
Then winging onward toward the western gold
It leaves them quivering still, in memory.

Vain Man.

"No," said Snailwort, "I hardly feel justified in saying that Peppers is ordinarily vain, but when a fellow has a photograph in his room arranged to play 'Hall to the Chief' as soon as he opens the door, who is one to think of him?"

CURRENT OPINION

BUSINESS MEN

TO LEAD.

We are in the midst of a great movement which will inevitably result in the transfer of the world's power to the business men of the world. This will require above all wise leadership.

We business men are coming to our kingdom—coming to the leadership of the world's statesmanship and the world's political and social progress because we are responsible—the most responsible men in the world. We are successful just in the degree that we are responsible. We are unscrupulous and constantly ejected from the business world by the bankruptcy courts or otherwise, if we are irresponsible.

The power of the world is coming into the hands of the masses, into the hands of our employees. Our employees outnumber us fifty or a hundred to one, and therefore this new power of the masses would portend loss of power to us, just as it portends loss of power to inherited autocratic rights, and to the aristocratic or snobbish class of the present and past—were it not for the fact that this new power of the masses must, in turn, also have leadership.

A mass without leadership is a mob doomed to defeat, and the business men are the natural leaders of the new power. It is true that it does not at once seem practicable possible that the masses of our employees will turn to us, their employers, for leadership as we remember the struggle of your race and today's struggle they are having with us as to questions of industrial relations.

But we business men are beginning to see, and our employees are beginning to see, and we shall both soon see clearly that most of the questions and problems we have been fighting about are problems of the trade and the business common problems—whose best solution is the task of employer and employee working together—not mere fighting questions to be fought out between us, and not battles without end for the possession of a single indivisible thing which both must have in order to live fully.

We shall both see that high wages and big profits are natural affinities, as are good working conditions and successful business. So it will come to be seen that we are the natural leaders. It will be found that all the principal things that our businesses need, the masses of our employees need also. Good housing, good transportation, good recreation facilities, good education that really fits men for their life's work and for their living, well governed cities, justice and security for property—these are the things our employees need most, and these are the things our businesses need most if they are not to be taken over by our governments at the behest of the masses of our employees, or if they are not to be stopped or killed by the constant friction and strikes that are always present when our employees are badly housed, or badly prepared for life, or badly recreating after their work. These are the things they will use their new greater power to get; and to get them, they will use us as leaders, as soon as they recognize that our enlightened self-interest wants these things too.—Edward A. Ellson, of Boston.

USE LESS WORDS.

Postmaster General Cuts Correspondence in the Department.

A large amount of governmental red tape was thrown aside this morning when Postmaster General Burleson issued an order prohibiting the use of unnecessary words in the correspondence between the bureaus and divisions of the department. At the same time he ordered printed letter heads and envelopes to be substituted for the embossed variety, and declared that material of the embossed kind remaining on hand was "to be preserved and used only for special matter." No more embossed letter heads and envelopes will be furnished, according to the order.

As to his order regarding the use of unnecessary words, the Postmaster General has directed "that the names of officers of the department in addressing official communications be not used; that instead of addressing one of the assistant postmasters general by his full title the words first assistant, second assistant, etc., only be used; and that the use of any salutation and complimentary closing be discontinued." On account of the large volume of correspondence handled in the department it will thus be seen that a great saving in the time of the clerical employees will be effected by this innovation, thereby considerably raising the individual employee's capacity for writing letters as well as reducing the amount of so-called 'red tape,' which too often hinders the work of the government.

"Mr. Burleson believes that by attention to just such small details as this the government will be saved annually many thousands of dollars."

Ancient Idea Concerning Dreams.

Plato, Aristotle and Cicero believed that dreams foretold future events if rightly interpreted. Artemidorus of Ephesus, who lived about the middle of the second century, wrote books of elaborate rules telling how to interpret dreams. Among other things he says that he who shall dream he has lost a tooth shall lose a friend.

Some Devout Dogs.

The following notice appears in the Weybridge (England) parish magazine: "A request has been made that owners of dogs will endeavor to present their attendance at St. Michael's church. A collie, an Aberdeen, a fox terrier and some others have of late presented themselves, not knowing that they are not welcome visitors."

Henry and His Wives.

"Henry VIII. was king of England and the greatest widower that ever was," states a boy's essay. "He was born at a place called Anne's Domine, and he had 350 wives. The first was beheaded and then executed, the second was revoked, and the third died, and then he married Anne Boleyn."—London Lancer.

In Boston.

"Look here, waiter," began the chronic grumbler, "there's no meat to this sandwich." "Then why do you call it a sandwich?" replied the learned waiter. "I am surprised that a gentleman of your education should commit such a solecism in rhetoric."

NO ESCAPE

"I am tired of the city" he said. As afar to the country he fled; With delight I will browse In the fields of the cows, In the scent of the genuine hay. But the very first sight that he saw In the street of the town of Paw-aw Was the tavern made bright With electrical light, And a sign that announced Cabaret!"

He remarked "I will fly to the wild By the footprint of man undeterred, With no thought of a shave.

I will dwell in a cave And will gather my food from the limb."

But he found that the hermit chose by

Had an auto of power quite high;

And the fellow came in

The next day with a grin

And a long wireless message from him!"

Then he went to the highest of peaks

After climbing for several weeks,

And he chuckled "At last

In this solitude vast,

I have found a desirable clime."

But he shook with unspeakable dread

When he saw on a crag overhead,

At that Andean height,

A big sign "Eight tonight!

Our New Movies! Admission

One Dime!"

When he went on a liner at sea,

They'd a vaudeville performance (ah me!)

With the dialect joke

He had hoped to escape

And a hidey assassin of songs!

So he hurried right back to New York

And was heard by the waiters to sigh,

"Since its certain I've got

No escape from this rot,

I will face it just where it belongs!"

MEXICO DENIES STORY OF ULTIMATUM TO UNITED STATES

President Huerta Receives Ex-Gov. Lind in Conference and Understanding Reached.

Mexico City, Aug. 19. Face to face in conference during the night, Ex-Gov. John Lind and President Huerta are believed to have reached an understanding which may yet prevent the severance of relations between the United States and Mexico, and serve to continue negotiations in which Washington may play the rôle of mediator.

Neither at the National Palace nor at the American Embassy were any details of the conference given out, but it is known that the meeting was cordial, and that Mr. Lind considers the so-called ultimatum announced through Dr. Aureliano Pratia, Minister of the Interior, late last night as unauthorized.

Mr. Lind has always believed that he could accomplish much if permitted to talk personally with the president, and there is reason to believe that as a result of this conference between those two plain-speaking men the attitude of President Huerta may be changed, notwithstanding that the first steps toward a diplomatic break had already been taken.

The gravity of the situation is at least considerably relieved for the moment.

Late last night Foreign Minister Gamboa said concerning the situation: "Minister of the Interior, Pratia, denies that he made the statement attributed to him. The Minister of Foreign Affairs is the only person responsible for any statement on business concerning his department."

Señor Gamboa's statement was made after a call on him by Mr. O'Shaughnessy.

Charge O'Shaughnessy called Secretary Bryan from Mexico City early today that President Huerta, through Foreign Minister Gamboa, emphatically denied there was "any foundation whatever" for the statement that Huerta had issued an ultimatum to the United States demanding recognition with the alternative of handing Mr. O'Shaughnessy his passport.

SHOWN LODGE AND STONE

Message From Lind and O'Shaughnessy Telling of Huerta Conference and Denial of Ultimatum.

Washington, Aug. 19.—A dispatch from John Lind early today informed President Wilson and Sec. Bryan that he had been in conference with Provisional President Huerta at an early hour today. He characterized his recognition and conference with Huerta as "cordial."

Last night's dispatches attributed the announcement of an ultimatum by Huerta to Minister Pratia of the Department of the Interior after official circles here deeply.

and the first conference between Huerta and Lind. In this note, Huerta and Lind as a "well informed man" indicated by the sincere motives to bring about a satisfactory solution of the unfortunate tension" existing between the nations.

The communications, after narrating the developments that led up to the presentation of the American note, end abruptly with the notation that the remainder would be forwarded later.

President Wilson, though at first opposed to the removal of the embargo on arms, was said today to be open-minded. A number of Senators have informed him, however, that to remove the embargo was the only alternative through which the overthrow of Huerta could be accomplished without direct interference of the United States.

HUNT THREE BODIES AFTER SQUALL

Youths Believed Drowned in Lake Willoughby, Vt.—Boat Capsized

Wethersfield, Vt., Aug. 19.—Three young men are believed to have lost their lives in Lake Willoughby when their boat capsized today. They were: Dana Tripp, aged 27, of Orleans; Monte Tripp, 24, of Greenway, Clayton; Badger, 25, of Harrison.

The correspondents have cabled that the Mexican Government has stated that its note to Lind demands that the United States recognize the Huerta Government before 12 o'clock midnight today, or a statement practically to that effect.

"I brought the matter to the urgent attention of the Minister of Foreign Affairs at 10 p.m. He immediately saw the President and Minister of Gobernacion, Señor Errrutha, who is supposed to have given out the statement, and he authorized me to deny this statement to my Government as having no foundation in fact."

The Senators also were shown a dispatch from John Lind, in which he said:

"Spent two hours with Huerta at his suggestion. Very cordial." The message was received at 2 p.m. today.

The Senators conferred briefly with President Wilson, and as they left the White House said they were satisfied that alarming reports were not justified. They still were hopeful that Mr. Lind's efforts to bring about an amicable understanding would be successful.

Both Senators were acquainted with the contents of Huerta's note to the American Government, cabled by Charge O'Shaughnessy. Although the tone of the note is scathing in its reference to the American suggestions nothing in it relates to an ultimatum or a demand for recognition.

While Huerta's rejection of the American proposal was a disappointment, officials were encouraged by advice from Mr. Lind that he was endeavoring further with Huerta, at his suggestion, to concoct an alternative measure was held in abeyance.

Included in the same message was the first part of the text of the note which constituted the Huerta reply to the American proposal. The preliminary sections gave no hint of ultimate rejection, but were phrased in courteous terms.

It sets forth historically the establishment of amicable relations, conversations with Foreign Minister Gamboa nothing in it related to an ultimatum or a demand for recognition.

THAW CAPTURED IN CANADA

Held for New York Authorities and May Be Deported--Some Question if Suspect is Harry Thaw.

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 19.—The Canadian immigration authorities declared yesterday afternoon that Harry K. Thaw would be deported from Canada under the immigration regulations.

The rule under which this action will be taken provides that any person who, within five years of his incarceration in a penitentiary or insane asylum, enters Canada, may be sent back as an undesirable.

A telegraphic request was sent to Pittsburgh by Thaw asking that a large sum of money be sent to him at Coaticook.

Thaw will be arraigned at Sherbrooke as a fugitive from justice in the United States. His slayer of Stanford White was arrested at Heremence-Garford early today, an hour after he had driven across the line from New Hampshire. He admitted his identity and complacently declared that he could not be extradited as he had committed no crime. Two men who are supposed to have accompanied Thaw in his spectacular flight from the insane asylum at Matteawan, New York, last Sunday morning, were found in his company and also detained. They were charged with being under suspicion of having committed an offense in another and friendly nation. These two, one of large build and the other a smaller man, at once retained counsel, and refused to disclose their identities.

The reward for Thaw's arrest belongs to Deputy Sheriff B. H. Kelsey of Colebrook, N. H., who recognized Thaw on a Maine Central Railroad train last night and after the fugitive had left the train at Herford, pursued him to Heremence-Garford where, at his request a Canadian officer placed the fugitive under arrest. Heremence-Garford is a village two miles south of Colebrook, where Thaw was taken. Though he had already admitted his identity to Sheriff Kelsey, he at first denied that he was the man who escaped from Matteawan. Later he freely admitted the facts of which the police were already convinced. He said, however, that he would fight any effort to extradite him and retained attorney J. Shifflife, of this place, to look after his interests. Shifflife had a long conference with his client who was to be arraigned at Sherbrooke this afternoon.

Thaw was silent after he had seen counsel and nothing was learned by the police of his flight up to the time that Sheriff Kelsey recognized him on a Maine Central Railway train that was taking him from northern New Hampshire into Canada.

He had made inquiries of the sheriff regarding the country through which he was passing, he probably would have been in Quebec this afternoon and possibly aboard a steamer sailing for England, without having his identity suspected. Hector Verrel, king's counsel of Colebrook, is acting for Sheriff Kelsey, who is acting for the United States authorities to hold the prisoner until further instructions are received from them.

With an associate list of older women, who, as the Girls' Club Association formerly insisted in its formation and stood behind it in many ways.

Meeting two or three evenings a week from October to June, there are classes in sewing, cooking, dramatics, gymnastics, dancing, and whatever a sufficient number of girls want. The latter part of the evening is spent in dancing or games, while once a month a business meeting is held, followed by a talk by an outsider, or an entertainer, and a social hour.

Mrs. Ramsey, superintendent of the Portsmouth hospital very kindly gave several practical talks on home nursing last winter.

The rooms are used all the year as a lunch place for members, who do not get home at noon, when the kitchen is found most convenient.

Growing stronger and more ambitious the past year, the Club has taken over all its expenses but the Secretary's salary, and this it has also voted to do in the fall, so the Association becomes an associate membership, a sort of advisory board, or club mother, when its help is needed.

Besides its dues, money is made by occasional sales, subscription dances, plays, and Saturday baked mean suppers.

Since the Portsmouth Girls' Club is the only one of its kind in the State, it has joined the Massachusetts Association of Women Workers, and sends delegates to its meetings occasionally. Every two years the National League of Women Workers holds a convention when several hundred girls meet in some interesting place to confer together on methods of work, and to see the city under most favorable guidance. Last year the Club sent three delegates to Quebec with Miss Goodwin.

The Massachusetts Association has a summer house at Rockport, Cape Ann where members can spend two weeks at a time at a reasonable rate. Just now Miss Goodwin is there acting as one of the chaperones, and has two members of the local club with her.

The Club is intended for all girls situated that they cannot join an afternoon club.

The present officers are: President, Mrs. Alice Berry of Stoneham, and Vice President, Mrs. Harry Drew of Watertown, Mass., who have been passing a month in this city returned home today.

BOUNDED TO COMMIT SUICIDE AND SUCCEEDED

Newburyport, Aug. 19.—Herbert L. Rowe, aged about 35, employed as a sticher in Dodge Brothers' shoe factory, committed suicide this morning by leaping into the Merrimac River from the bridge of the Boston & Maine Railroad. Rowe appeared at the passenger station of the road this morning about 9 o'clock and as the Amesbury train came into the station he tried to throw himself in front of it. The train was moving slowly, and two of the station employees pulled Rowe away from danger.

Rowe made a pass at one of his rescuers as if to strike him, then dashed out on the Merrimac street Bridge. Before any one could reach him, Rowe leaped into the river. He made no effort to assist himself in any way, and by the time a boat could be secured he had disappeared. The body was recovered in about 20 minutes and although physicians attempted to restore respiration, their efforts were unavailing. Dr. Hurd, the medical examiner, gave a verdict of suicide.

Rowe came here about a year ago from Hallieville, Md., where it is understood he has a mother living.

Consumptives Helped by Tuberculosis Medicine

It is folly to believe that Consumption differs from every other disease in not requiring the use of any medicine for its treatment. For a number of years no one has been of any value to the patient. Testimonials from persons who consider that they owe their lives to Ekelman's Alternative, a medicine for Tuberculosis, has been accumulating. Surely plenty of time to demonstrate its lasting value. You can write to the inventor. He is one of 322 Charles Avenue.

"Gentlemen: In the winter of 1905 I had an attack of Grippe, followed by Pneumonia and later by Consumption. I grew steadily worse. In the winter of 1906 I had a violent night-sweat, fever and raised quantities of sputum, and had to leave home. I had many hemorrhages, and at one time three in three successive days. Milk and eggs became so distasteful I could keep them down. Three physicians tried me, and were ordered to the mountains, but did not succeed. Alternative was recommended by a friend. After taking a small quantity, I had the best quiet night's sleep for weeks. My quietness was marked from the first. I gained strength and weight, and appetite. I had another hemorrhage and my cough stopped, but I was still steadily going. I am perfectly well. Everything I say here can be verified by my family and friends."

NOT FOR YEARS

Has the Scarcity of Mackerel Been So Noticeable.

Not in years and perhaps never has there been such a scarcity of mackerel off this port as there has been this season. And the fishermen are not less to account for it. It is true that of late mackerel have not been as plentiful as this, eighty as they were 5 and 10 years ago, but never as far as the local fishermen have any knowledge, has there been a scarcity to compare with that of this year.

The mackerel began to make their appearance off the port the latter part of June, at least a fortnight earlier than they were expected. At first a few were caught with the herring and then later several small schools of tinkerers were gathered in and the fishermen began preparing for the large ones. It was expected that large mackerel would be schooling about the first of July, and the tinkerers were as early in making their appearance, but the middle of July failed to bring them and so did they appear the last of July and, to continue, they have not appeared yet.
